

Proposal by: Laavanya Prakash

Feedback from: Will Barlow

Does the proposal include all necessary components for the proposal (see assign. desc.). Y / N
If No, what is missing:

Yes

In your own words, describe the main aims or concerns of the project:

Laavanya, in the form of a personal essay, will draw on her personal experiences and research into her family legacy to discuss her experiences of colonialism and how she intends to decolonize herself in Canada.,

Identify the audience(s) for the project and provide suggestions for how to communicate effectively to that audience. What knowledge/ideas can be assumed of the audience? What should the person consider when seeking to communicate to that audience?

The audience for this project is young adults in the global world. It is assumed that this audience is between eighteen and twenty-five. It is assumed that this audience is worldly and has some knowledge of multiple perspectives. Laavanya should consider employing colloquial language in her project to communicate effectively with this audience.

Is the plan for the project clear and manageable? Is it organized logically? Does everything fit? Can it be completed in just 2000 words effectively?

The project plan is clear and manageable, it is organized logically and it appears that everything will fit and it can be completed in 2000 words effectively.

Does the proposed project utilize resources from the course and from outside research effectively? Can you make suggestions for course readings/material or other research sources that might be of value for this project?

Yes. Unfortunately, however, I have no suggestions.
